

This report describes your greatest strengths. Some of the strengths described are paradoxical pairs of traits where two strengths seem to be opposite or contradictory, but in fact are complementary or synergistic. Paradoxical strengths describe a unique ability which enables you to be more versatile and to respond more effectively to a variety of different situations in your life or in your work.

For example, frankness and diplomacy reflects a paradoxical pair of traits. While the two traits appear to be opposite, they are actually complementary. If you are both frank and diplomatic, you communicate truthfully and respectfully. This unique ability enables you to build relationships while at the same time getting things done.

If you are currently a job seeker, being able to clearly verbalize your strengths can help you to get the job you are seeking. Consequently, we recommend that you reflect on the strengths below as well as your achievements that were the result of applying these strengths. This will enable employers to better understand how your unique strengths can create value for their organization.

If you are currently employed, look for ways you can further apply these strengths in your current job. The more you can apply your strengths the more likely you will achieve personal satisfaction and career success.

If you spend effort building on your strengths, it is much more likely to help your career than if you focus on your weaknesses. Strengths relate enjoyable patterns of thought and behavior which can be productively applied. These are refined with practice and combined with skills and knowledge that you acquire. Consequently, these strengths are the most powerful means you have of moving your career forward.
